SC OSHA Sign Safety Partnership With Holder Construction

Holder Construction and the South Carolina Occupational Safety and Health Administration (SC OSHA) entered into a limited partnership agreement on Wednesday, June 30, 2021, to provide the safest possible work environment for employees working on a construction project in Berkeley County.

With this partnership, SC OSHA will visit the site where multiple buildings are being constructed to help employers and employees identify and correct potential hazards on the worksite. SC OSHA also will provide training and guidance to participating contractors to improve their safety and health performance and to build a solid safety culture within the workforce.

“SC OSHA is committed to working with employers in this State to ensure employees have a safe and healthy worksite,” LLR Director Emily Farr said. “By signing this partnership, it is clear that Holder Construction shares that commitment. We look forward to working with their team.”

This agreement is consistent with SC OSHA's long-range efforts to develop workplace safety partnerships within the construction industry. It allows for better use of SC OSHA resources, fosters innovation in safety management, and encourages active participation in the safety process on the part of construction/trade association communities.

One of the long-term benefits of partnerships like this one is that subcontractors and workers take what they learn about safety at the project site to future construction worksites.
